case study

The Number One Health Group were concerned that reception staff could be vulnerable to verbal and physical abuse.

Aware of its Health and Safety responsibilities to protect lone workers Number One Health Group decided to investigate products that would enable lone workers to discreetly raise the alarm if they feel threatened.

Kristina Evangelou, Practice Manager, said; "We wanted our lone workers to have the infrastructure to manage their safety and to be able to discreetly raise the alarm if they feel threatened."

After considering all available options Number One Health decided to partner with lone worker safety experts Peoplesafe.

Peoplesafe assessed their individual requirements and delivered lone worker safety training and supplied Identicom safety devices to each lone worker.

The Identicom device, which can be worn around the neck on a lanyard like a standard ID, enables the wearer to discreetly raise an alarm if threatened and also allows a third party to listen to what is happening and coordinate emergency support if required.

The device can also be used to discreetly alert Peoplesafe lone worker safety experts, who can make digital recordings of incidents of verbal abuse, which can then be used to secure convictions.

This feature is particularly useful as verbal abuse offenders often feel they are immune from legal prosecution because mobile phones can't be relied upon to capture evidence of abuse.

Kristina Evangelou, Practice Manager, said; "Peoplesafe have been extremely helpful and their service gives our staff confidence when working alone."

Number One Health Group are now enjoy the reassurance of the Peoplesafe expert support service 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.
