“ I was conscious that as our parking hosts regularly work alone at night they could be vulnerable to an accident or attack.

Now they equipped with Peoplesafe lone worker safety devices our lone workers enjoy the peace of mind of knowing they can summon help at the touch of a button.

Responsible car park operators, especially those running 24 hour operations, have a responsibility to help keep their lone workers safe.

Pure Parking decided to review their lone worker policy after one of their lone workers collapsed during a shift and was unable to raise the alarm. Both operators were also concerned about the possibility of attacks against members of their team.

As a result of these concerns both Q Park and Pure Parking contacted Peoplesafe for advice on developing a lone worker safety strategy.

Peoplesafe analysed the needs of both companies and suggested a programme of lone worker safety training and that each lone worker should carry a safety device.

The Peoplesafe safety device now being used by Q Park and Pure Parking lone workers resemble a normal ID holder but with the latest mobile technology to enable users to covertly raise an alarm if they feel threatened.

Lone workers have the option to press the device's 'checking in' button when they are entering a potentially hazardous situation, which gives them the reassurance of knowing they are being monitored, and that they were free to press the red alert button if needed.

Once the button is pressed the Peoplesafe team of lone worker safety experts at the monitoring centre can listen to what is happening and where appropriate record events or coordinate emergency support.

As we are experts in lone worker safety we are able to provide a comprehensive range of products and services to meet the individual needs of each lone worker.

As part of complete service for Q Park and Pure Parking we have provided ongoing training and support to help keep all their lone workers safe.
